SUBJECT: ALPHONSE INDELICATO
AR

On 6/26/73, [REDACTED] Bureau of Special Services, New York State Parole, 340 West 40th Street, advised as follows:

When the New York State Parole arrested SONNY RED INDELICATO at 113 Elizabeth Street, they saw a picture of a car in front of a house that must have been in Selden, New York. The car license plate came out to be a leased car which was eventually traced to [REDACTED] New Jersey. [REDACTED] is the [REDACTED] New York City. [REDACTED] is married to [REDACTED] telephone number [REDACTED] ELI ZECCARDI, a reputed "Button" in the GENOVESE Family. ELI resides at 206 Autobahn Road, Englewood, New Jersey. He is supposed to be partners in the Cafe Roma, Broom Street, New York City.

[redacted] white female, age [redacted] who is [redacted] is married to [redacted] age [redacted] and the only other child of the marriage of [redacted] explained that [redacted] all of whom reside here, are all employed as [redacted] New York (main office in [redacted])

b7C

[redacted] stated [redacted] was married once before to a man named [redacted] and she had one son by that marriage, [redacted] who lives nearby in [redacted] She said her mother-in-law's 1st husband has been deceased for at least 25 years. To her knowledge neither any member of [redacted] have ever been arrested nor connected with any [redacted] people involved in organized crime. She stated both of her mother-in-law and her father-in-law's families were originally from Manhattan but since she grew up [redacted] she does not know too much about their relatives or background. She does know that her husband, now age [redacted] moved to [redacted]

She could furnish no information of value regarding the subject or his associates and stated the only persons on [redacted] with whom her in-laws are close is [redacted] who is the sister of [redacted]

The above interview took place in the AM on September 27, at which time only [redacted] and her infant were at home. The following interview took place on the afternoon of September 27, 1973:

[redacted]
is a white female, age [redacted] and she states her current husband, [redacted] She said her sons of this marriage, [redacted] reside here and along with their father are employed as stated above. She knows the subject who during the past two years has spend occasional weekends as a guest here in her home. She was quick to point out he always obtained the permission of his parole officer when spending the weekend at her home. She explained her relationship to the husband, or rather to his wife, in this manner:

[redacted]
She grew up in [redacted] and her father was for years [redacted] at [redacted]

[redacted] She said she is not really that familiar with the subject's criminal record and does not know his associates. She viewed photos of SONNY PINTO and JOE YACOVELLI and denied knowing either of them.

She said about 3 years after the death of her first husband she met and married her current husband [redacted] who was originally from [redacted]

They lived on [redacted]

Concerning persons living in this area with whom either she or the subject are acquainted she said as follows:

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

Regarding [REDACTED] family of [REDACTED] she claimed not to know these people except to say that the wife in that house is [REDACTED] who talks to [REDACTED] as her next door neighbor.

[REDACTED]

She said on his visits to the Selden area which are very irregular the subject would visit [REDACTED]. However, she claimed he never brought any friends out to Selden with him and she knows of no reason why any one from Nyack or anyone else upstate would be in telephone contact with her home and she does not recall the subject making calls when he stayed here on weekend visits. She said she knows [REDACTED] who has also been a visitor to her home. He had a motorcycle he wanted to sell and may have been in telephone contact with her sons requesting their assistance in selling it.

She furnished no other information of a helpful nature and although somewhat guarded in her answers she was like her daughter-in-law, polite and friendly.

A Mobster Talks

A Mobster Tells Lunarelli, Fleeing Death, Heads for Coast and the FBI

By PAUL MESKIL
Copyright 1974 by New York News Inc.
(Last of a series)

The young FBI agent had never met anyone like Joe Pesh before. When the hulking hood walked into his office and told him he wanted to surrender for the murder of Crazy Joe Gallo, the agent was dumfounded.

Within a week after Gallo's execution at Umberto's Clam House in April 1972, the man who set it up—Joseph (Joe P. H.) Laparello—was running for his life. He feared that his boss, Colombo, consigliere Joseph (Joe-Nuck) Macovelli, planned to kill him and his wife because they knew too much.

So he fled to California and surrendered at the FBI office in Santa Ana, south of Los Angeles.

"My name is Joe Luparelli," the fugitive hit man said. "I was involved in the Joe Gallo shooting. I'm here for protection."

The agent on duty did not believe him. When the agent called the New York office to check the story, he said: "I think I've got a nut on my hands."

"He's no nut," an agent in New York replied. "He's for real. Hang on to him."

Luparelli asked that he be turned over to Denis Dillon, then chief of the Strike Force Against Organized Crime in the Eastern District of New York and now district attorney-elect of Nassau County. But the FBI decided to give him to the New York City Police Department, which had jurisdiction in the Gallo case.

Returned to New York under heavy guard, he was lodged in various Times Square hotels while detectives and FBI men questioned him. His family also received police protection. Several mobsters phoned his wife and tried to arrange a meeting between her and Joseph (JoJo Crumb) Tedeschi, a Genovese gangster and pal of Joe Yack.

associate known to him as Burry. Police sources identified Burry as Rocco Perino, father-in-law of Genovese soldier Dominick (Cokie Dom) Alongi, longtime lieutenant of the late Thomas (Tommy Ryan) Eboli and a friend of Joe Yack.

"Burry came over to the house one day and spoke to Jerry downstairs while he (the detective) was on outside duty. Burry was always bringing reports back (about what went on in the Luparelli household). Burry told my wife she should try to send me crazy by not coming to see me and they would give her money the rest of her life.

"If she would leave me to make me go crazy, maybe I wouldn't be able to testify. If I go crazy, I might kill myself. They were hoping on that. And they almost succeeded.

"We had an argument. I abused everybody over the phone. I screamed at her sister. I told my wife, 'What's going on there with your sister and Burry bringing back all the tales?'

"Then she (Mrs. Luparelli) didn't want to bother with me no more. She said she was going to sign everybody off (call off the police guard). No more protection.

Fearful for His Children

"I was afraid for her life. I was afraid they'd kidnap one of my kids in order to make a deal. And I figured the only thing I could do to make them safe was to be dead.

(At the time, Luparelli was in a motel in the metropolitan area, with two United States marshals guarding him.)

"That evening I cut my wrist with a razor. I lay on the bed with my wrist hanging over the side and just let it bleed out. One of the marshals came in. He looked at the floor and seen the blood and called his partner.

"They tied up my arm and rushed me to a hospital. They asked me, 'What's this?' and I said, 'I just gotta help my family.

If I'm dead, maybe they'll leave my family alone.'

"And they said, 'That's what they want you to do.'

U.S. Marshal Ben Butler of Brooklyn and his assistant, Mike Pizzi, took over the job of protecting Luparelli's family. Luparelli remained in federal custody for two years, testifying before grand juries and at court trials of some of his former comrades-in-arms.

As a result of his testimony, a Manhattan grand jury named Carmine (Sonny Pinto) Di Biase as the killer of Crazy Joe Gallo. Di Biase and two brothers who assisted him with the hit have not been apprehended.

After 22 months in hiding, Joe Yack surrendered to police last February. But he has not been charged with playing any part in the Gallo murder.

His former chauffeur-bodyguard went through a job-training program and is now doing honest work for the first time in his life. He doesn't live or work in the city where we met for the interviews. I didn't know where he is living. He wouldn't have told me anyway.

"I'm in a nice community now," he said. "I get along with a lot of the people. Nobody there knows who I am.

"It's been almost ten years now since I went on the lam. I was very security-minded at first. I was careful. Right now I don't feel worried. I look around from force of habit but I don't feel they're behind me no more. I don't feel anyone is following me but I watch my back anyway.

They Know He's Alive

"If anything's going to happen, it will happen.

"Joe Yack knows I know a hell of a lot. Junior (Carmine Perino) and all them guys would like to have their hands on me. If they do ever get up with me, I only hope they send me right away.

"I wouldn't want to be raped and tortured. I don't mind dying. I don't want to die a thousand times.

A Mobster Talks His Flight Begins With Order: Kill Your Wife

By PAUL MESKIL

(Fourth of a series)

A dream of blood, a pointing trigger finger, an order to kill his own wife . . .

These were some of the things that caused Joseph (Joe Pesh) Luparelli to flee from the mob and turn to the FBI for protection.

When he set up the murder of Crazy Joe Gallo in 1972, Joe Pesh realized he might soon be a target for the Gallo gang. But he never dreamed that a contract for his execution would be put out by his boss, Joseph (Joe Yack) Yacovelli, consigliere of the Colombo crime family.

Using a Code on the Phone

After the Gallo hit, Luparelli drove up to the Colombo command post in Nyack, N.Y., with the chief assassin, Carmine (Sonny Pinto) Di Biase and another participant, Philip (Fat Fungi) Gambino. They told Yack what they had done.

Next day, Yack began a series of conferences with other Colombo capos.

"I contacted them through phone booth stations," Joe Pesh told me at a secret rendezvous far from his old underworld haunts. "I would go to a pay phone in Nyack and call a pay phone in Little Italy or Brooklyn. When a guy answered, I would say, 'Have so-and-so call this number from Station A at 5 o'clock.' Something like that."

Word on Sonny Slipped Out

"We used different phone booths through the city—Stations 1, 2, 3, A, B, C and so on. And we used code names. Joe Yack was Roger. When a guy called back, I would say, 'Roger wants so-and-so.' And I would tell them to meet me at the first gas station off the George Washington Bridge on Falisades Parkway."

"Alley Boy (Alphonse Persico, who was made a full captain in the Colombo army around this time) came up and Joe Angelo, Vinnie Aloï came later."

(Aloï, acting boss of the Colombo clan, was spotted by an FBI agent on April 18, 10 days after the Gallo rubout, in the Nyack apartment house where Joe Pesh and Joe Yack were hiding.)

"They were all concentrating on Pete the Greek (Gallo's bodyguard, wounded in the shootout at Umberto's Clam House). They found out that Joe Gallo's father went to see Pete the Greek in the hospital. Pete whispered something in the old man's ear, probably about Sonny Pinto. Before you know it, the word is out: 'Sonny Pinto done it.'

"Jerry Ciprio got it a few days after gun blast April 10 outside his Brooklyn restaurant. Joe Yack was glad of that. Ciprio was hit because he was an associate of Gallo's. He was on the list (a death list of 17 Gallos, drawn up by Yack after Joe Colombo was shot in 1971).

"Ciprio was ordered to stay away from them (the Gallos), but when he came to Mulberry St. he was acting as a spy for the Gallos and we were aware of it. But Joe Yack held off. He said, 'I don't want no guys dropping until Joe Gallo's hit first.' All Gallo associates were to be killed later.

Blamed It All on Gallos

"Some other guys got it around the same time as Ciprio. When there's a war and the bodies are dropping, everybody starts to clean up house. They took advantage of it and let it all be blamed on the Gallos.

"Joe Yack said: 'If Pete the Greek was smart, he would ask for some kind of sitdown and I might spare his life if he would do like I tell him. We may have to whack him out with Blast (Joe Gallo's brother) and the rest, but I could spare his life if we could do it right.'

A contract from the boss?

"So lots of meetings started. Sonny Pinto went up to Connecticut (to a mob hideout). Yack didn't want to chance his staying with us. Yack and I laid up in Nyack."

They were very busy but Yack found time to inquire about the health of his bodyguard's family, a concern that sent chills through Luparelli's well-larded frame. He remembered the only order from the consigliere that he had disobeyed.

"I had been having problems with my wife. And I had been told many times that I showed weakness because I loved my wife and kids. I was told not to show too much love to my family. 'You shouldn't be with your kids too much. You're not paying enough attention to Our Thing (it's a Nostra).'"

"My wife let me a few times. One time she took off with some money that didn't belong to me, about $6,000. I was only holding it and when I couldn't produce it Yack got hold of me. He said: 'She took the money. I don't care about the money it's the insult. She don't give a damn about nobody. She's sending you crazy. You think she's ever gonna stop?'"

"I said: 'I just don't know.' Then he said: 'Answer this question: When a person gets cancer, what do they do?'"

Told to 'Kill' Wife

"I said: 'They try to get rid of it, cut it out.'"

"He said: 'Your wife is a cancer to you. I want you to kill her. We'll take care of the body. You won't have to bury her or nothing. I'll tell you how to do it.'"

"I told him: 'I don't know where she's at.'"

"He said: 'Get rid of her. Then you'll have your kids to yourself.' After five days of this, he more or less convinced me. He talked me into hating her.

"About two weeks later, this guy told me she was living in a trailer at a resort in Montivello. I got up there about daybreak I knocked on the door, she opened it and I bellowed: 'Why did you do this to me? Why did you touch that money? You're destroying me!'"

"Instead of killing her, I stood up there three days I stood with her, played with the kids. When I got back, Yack raised all kinds of hell. 'Don't tell me. I don't want to hear it. You didn't do nothing I said.'"

"All this happened before Colombo got shot, but it came to my mind while we were hiding out at Nyack. After the Gallo hit, I went home to get some clothes. My wife asked me what happened. I said: 'Don't ask.' I never told her I was implicated.

"I told her: 'You're going to get $200 a week; just keep your mouth shut.' She knew Joe Yack was a Colombo boss and I was with Joe Yack. I kept as much as I could from her but she reads the papers and watches TV. I can't lock her in a room."

When Joe Pesh returned to Nyack, Yack asked about his wife.

"Fat Fungi was there and he told me a story about this guy in Connecticut, a made man (Mafia member) who they poisoned and he got 10 times stronger. Instead of dying, he got violent. They had to shoot him in the head. After that story, Yack asked me about my wife: 'What's she doing? She know what happened? You didn't say anything to her?'"

"I said: 'Joe, she knows you and me are together. You called me up at the house. You called her when I was in the hospital.'"

"He said: 'Well, both cars here are in your wife's name, so I'd like you to tell her to come up and take the cars.' I had a '72 Chevrolet Impala and an Oldsmobile there. I told him I didn't want my wife to come up, so he said: 'OK, we'll do it some other way.'"

'He's Mad at You,' Fungi Said

"I said: 'You'll do what?' He didn't answer. Later, Fungi told me: 'He's mad at you.'"

"Then another thing happened. Fungi was sitting at a table in the dining room, a big glass table with three chairs on each side and one at each end. Fungi and Yack were talking. I could see Fungi through the kitchen door but Yack was on the couch, out of sight.

"Yack made a noise, 'Pssst, pssst.' Like that. Fungi made a motion with his right hand (sticking out his trigger-finger and flexing it as if firing a gun). He held his hand under the table. He didn't think about the glass top. I seen him.

"They started laughing but when I go in there they stop laughing and keep quiet.

"Yack was sleeping in the master bedroom. Fungi and I were in the other two bedrooms. I couldn't sleep that night I opened my eyes in the dark and saw Yack standing in the hall outside my room, staring at me. There was a dim light in the hall so I could see him good, but he couldn't tell I was awake.

She Has a Terrible Dream

"He looked at me and shook his head (from side to side). I thought, 'This guy's checking up to see if I'm here.' I didn't know what the hell to do.

"When I called my wife next day, she said: 'Joe, I had a terrible dream. I seen you standing full of blood. You had a white shirt on, full of blood. Are you all right?'"

"I said: 'Sure I'm all right. Aren't you talking to me?'"

"She said: 'Be careful.'"

"A couple days later Joe Yack said, 'Sonny Red (Alphonse Indelicato) and a few other guys are coming up to take us to a new place. Will you tell your wife to come up to take the cars away?'"

"A few guys? I said to myself, 'This is it. How dumb does he think I am?' This is three days I stood there knowing they're looking to kill me. I had a gun there. I don't know why I didn't shoot the two of them (Yack and Fungi).

"I said: 'Okay, Joe. I'll go call my wife.'"

"I go down, get in the car and drive there. I don't know what the— to do.

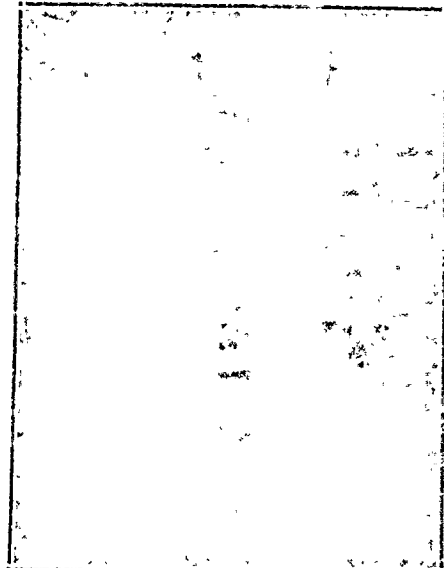

Grabs a Car and Flees

"I drove a few hours, then I called him up. He said: 'Where are you?' I said: 'Joe, I'm not coming back.' He said: 'Listen, come back before you do anything stupid.'"

"I said: 'Joe, why you turned against me, I don't know. I loved you like a brother and you're doing this to me. Why? Because I love my wife and children?'"

"Have I ever dishonored anybody? Have I ever broke the code (the underworld code of silence)? I always done what you told me."

"He said: 'What are you gonna do?'"

Joseph (Joe Yack) Yack's apartment in this Nyack, N.J., building was Colombo command post and was used as a hideout after the Gallo hit.

"I said: 'I don't know. I'm just taking off.'"

Luparelli drove to Philadelphia, left his car at the airport and flew to California, where he visited his sister who had not seen him in years and knew nothing of his career.

"I called up my wife and told her where I was at. She said: 'Joe, there's two cars full of men outside. When I went to Korvette's, they told me. The only reason they didn't kill me was because of you.'"

"What are they doing now?'"

"Just sitting outside."

"I told her to stay in the house, keep the kids in, don't go nowhere. When I went to the FBI."

A Mobster Talks

Gallo a Swaggering Target but Hard to Nail

By PAUL MESKIL

(Third of a series)

For Joseph (Joe Pesh) Luparelli, the killing of Crazy Joe Gallo was the crowning achievement of a crime career that began when he was 10 years old.

Snuffing Gallo wasn't easy. The Colombo gang stalked him for almost 10 months, from the day mob boss Joe Colombo was shot in June 1971 until the following April. Gallo escaped several Colombo traps and staggered about the city, always unarmed and often without a bodyguard, as if he hadn't a worry in the world.

He made new friends in show biz and literary circles and announced he was writing his memoirs. He also claimed to have gone straight, but he was meeting with black racketeers in an effort to form a new, integrated mob. On March 13, 1972, he married a shapely blonde divorcee, Lina Essary. Well-known actors and authors were among the wedding guests.

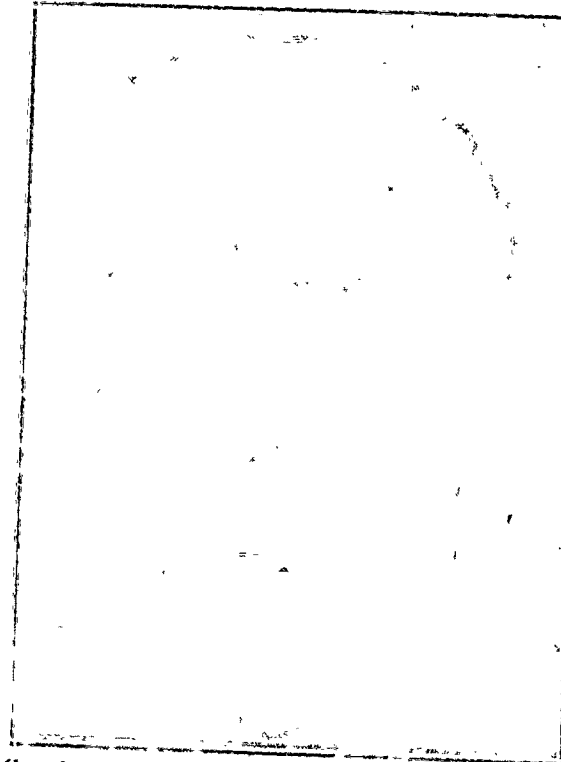

Caught 'Em by Surprise

Two weeks later he attended a wake at a funeral home in the heart of the mob territory in Brooklyn. Colombo soldiers among the mourners were so surprised that they made no attempt to harm him.

"We heard about that," Luparelli said during two days of secret talks with this reporter. "He was at the funeral home, at the Copi, at the Persian Room. He was all over the place. He even came into a social club at 121 Mulberry St., Joe the Wop's old place. Joe the Wop was a boss and he died. Another guy, George Argenta, took it over. He wasn't a boss or nothing; he just bought the place."

"Anyway, Joe Gallo came in and started shooting off his mouth. He said, 'I don't give a damn. I'll kill anybody who's in my way.' There was a lot of people there. Joe Curly, Frankie the Dog and others. If they had any respect at all for Joe Yack (Macavelli, consigliere of the Colombo family and Luparelli's boss) they would have killed the son of a bitch right there."

Gallo was accompanied by his brother Albert (Kid Blast), his bodyguard, Peter (Feto the G-ess) Diapoulos and Gallo gangster Rosario (Roy-Roy) Musico. "They all showed guns except Joe, who was on parole and didn't pack a piece. George Argenta was dying to get away from him because he figured any minute bullets would be flying."

And within a few days, they were.

Late Friday night, April 7, Luparelli limped into a Chinese restaurant at 91 Mulberry St., just south of Canal St. He was recovering from a leg operation and walked with a cane. He found Carmine (Sonny Pinto) Di Biase at the bar with Philip (Fat Fungi) Gambino, no relation to the Mafia superdon.

"Fungi had just come out of the can. He said, 'I went away, I stood in jail, I come out and this war's still going on.'"

After a few drinks with his friends, Luparelli went a block up the street to Umberto's Clam House, 129 Mulberry at Hester St. It was around 4 o'clock in the morning but Mulberry St. was wide awake.

"Matty the Horse (Matthew Ianiello, member of the former Genovese-Eboli mob) was there and we were talking when something happened outside. Johnny the Ice Man (another neighborhood character) was arguing with a uniformed cop. We went out to look.

"Then who drove up in a black Cadillac but Joe Gallo and Pete the Greek. Joe opens his Cadillac and says, 'How's the seafood—any good?' Matty the Horse says, 'Yeah, pretty good.'"

Gallo had been celebrating his 43d birthday. After a champagne party at the Copacabana night club, he drove down to Little Italy with his bride; her 10-year-old daughter, Lisa Essary; Joe's sister, Carmela Fiorello; Peter the Greek, and Pete's date, Edith Russo.

"I never knew there was a kid in there," Luparelli said. "I only seen Gallo, Pete the Greek and the women. I never seen the kid. I turned my back when I recognized Gallo and the Greek. I didn't want them to get ahead of my face because I figure maybe Pete the Greek will know I'm with Joe Yack.

"I went back to 91 (the restaurant at 91 Mulberry). Sonny Pinto's still there. I says, 'Guess who's in the clam house? Un Paz (a nickname derived from the Italian words Un Pazzo, the Crazy One)!"

"Sonny says, 'Who Un Paz?"

"I says, 'Joe Gallo's in there.'

"He says, 'That bastard's got some nerve, coming into the neighborhood all the time. We're going to load up. We're going to hit him right now!"

"There were these two brothers in the place, Cisco and Benny. They worked for Sonny Franzese (a Colombo capo). Sonny Pinto spoke to them on the side and they went out. Then he spoke to me. I got a cane and can't do nothing on account of my leg. He says, 'All I want you to do is drive the backup car.'

"I said, 'What about this guy Fat Fungi?' He said, 'I don't want him to do nothing. He's on parole anyway.'

"The brothers came back with four guns. I think there was two .38s, a .32 and a .22 automatic. I gave the .22 back to the guy. It looked rusty, like it might blow up in my hand. Sonny says, 'Just stay with the car.'

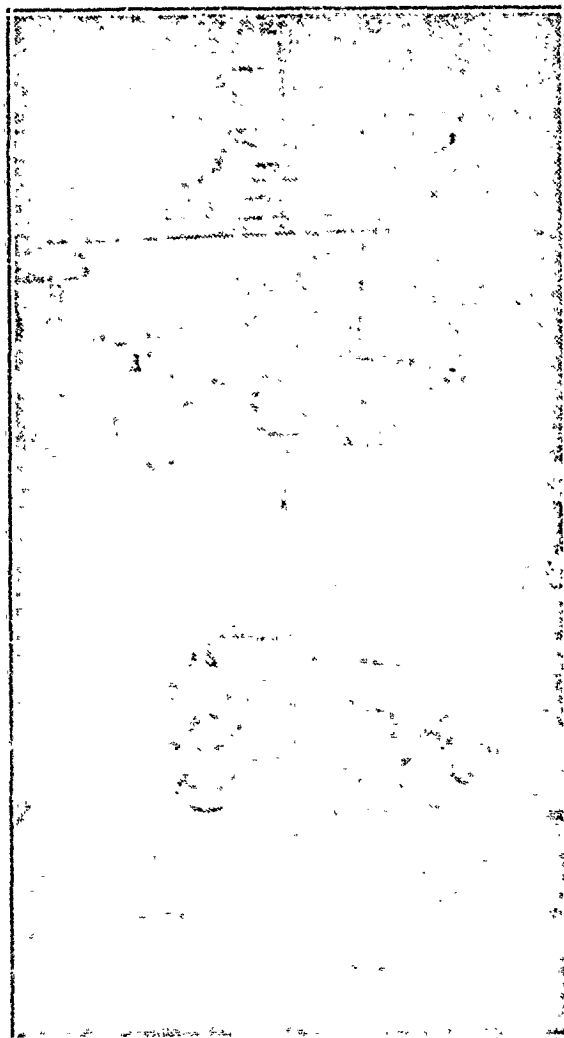

Gallo's Still There

Luparelli, Sonny Pinto, Fat Fungi and the two brothers drove to Umberto's around 5 a.m. in two cars. The Gallo party was still there, sitting at the butler's block by the side door.

know it was his wife and sister. I thought they was just broads.

"Sonny used his car. I used mine. I blocked off the middle of the intersection at Hester and Mulberry. Sonny and the brothers went in the side door on Mulberry St. and started firing at Gallo.

"Pete the Greek got shot in the ass when he ducked under the table. He wasn't supposed to duck, but he did. Then everybody came running out. Sonny and the brothers jumped in his car and pulled away. Sonny did his own driving and everything. That's how crazy he was.

"Pete the Greek was firing at them. Pete went back in after he emptied out his pistol. Matty the Horse was hiding in the kitchen. He didn't know what was going on, but Pete the Greek thought he set it up. He went up to Matty and said, 'How could you do this in front of his wife and kid?"

with Fungi, and we could look right into the kitchen through the open door.

"Me and Fungi saw Joe Gallo come out the front entrance and stumble and fall in the middle of Hester St. near his Cadillac. His sister and wife and the kid were all screaming. Pete the Greek ran to Joe Gallo. Then Pete fainted, right on the street

"We all went back to 91. Sonny wanted to stay there and drink some more. He didn't think nothing of that he had just shot Joe Gallo. I said, 'Sonny we can't stay here. We've got to get out of here.'"

"We gave the brothers the guns so they get rid of them. We dropped them (the brothers) off at Centre Market and Grand, right near Police Headquarters. Me and Sonny then drove his car and put it in front of his mother's house on Lafayette between Broome and Grand (about three blocks from Umberto's). It had a flat. A bullet had hit a rear tire. So we got into my car.

To Nyack Lying Down

"Fungi and I sat in front. Sonny lay down on the back seat. We drove up to Nyack (where Joe Yack was staying in a riverside apartment building at 101 Gedney St.).

"Joe Yack was asleep when we got there. He didn't know a thing. When he opens the apartment door, Fungi says, 'We got him! We got him!'

"Yack says, 'Just a minute. Slow down.' Let's get inside."

"We went into the apartment and he says, 'Joe, what did you do when you came up here? Could you have been followed?'

"I says, 'I checked in back and all. I made sure we weren't tailed.'"

"He says, 'OK, now tell me the story.'"

"When he heard what happened, he kissed Sonny Pinto on the mouth. That's a sign of thanks for a killing. He says, 'In my heart I knew you were going to kill that son of a bitch.' Then he asked who else was there."

"I said, 'Matty, some people, a couple of broads, Pete the Greek.'"

"He says, 'Pete the Greek? Is he dead?'

"Sonny says, 'I dunno. We shot at him too. He fell on the floor. He must be shot too.'"

"Yack says, 'If he ain't dead, we're in trouble. That son of a bitch will go to jail and by accident, accidentally on purpose, he'll spill who done it. He'll tell it to somebody. Word will get out that you're the guy. The broads we aren't worried about. They don't know the faces. Pete the Greek is the only link in the chain that could get you.'"

"They turned on the radio and listened to an all-news station until they heard a bulletin saying Gallo had been shot."

"It don't mention he's dead. Joe Yack gets worried. 'This son of a bitch could be still alive,' he says. 'If he's alive we'll go to the hospital and kill him.'"

"Fat Fungi lay down on the rug. Sonny Pinto lay on the couch. I started making coffee. We was all quiet. Yack was walking up and down. He says, 'What cars did you use?'

"I said, 'I used mine, Sonny used his.'"

"Your own cars?'

"Yeah."

Colombo Shot, The War Is On

"WHEN JOE COLOMBO got shot, everybody went into hiding. The war was on with Joe Gallo."

In those words, Joseph (Joe Pesh) Luparelli described the start of the Colombo-Gallo war—an annihilation contest that is still raging in Brooklyn more than three years after the Colombo hit.

Joe Pesh was in the center of the action. As the driver-bodyguard-courier of Joseph (Joe Yack) Yacovelli, consigliere of the Colombo crime clan and field marshal of the Colombo troops, he served at command headquarters and in the front lines. For a few brief days, he was war hero. Then he went AWOL because he did not believe Gen. MacArthur's maxim that "old soldiers never die."

Planned to Wipe Out Gallo

In two days of conversations with this reporter in a motel 1,000 miles from New York, Luparelli revealed that Joe Yack had planned to wipe out the entire Gallo gang. He also disclosed details of unsuccessful attempts to assassinate Gallo, who was finally slain "in a spur-of-the-moment thing."

About 11:30 a.m. on June 28, 1971, Colombo was shot three times in the head as he arrived at Columbus Circle for a Unity Day rally sponsored by his Italian-American Civil Rights League. As the gang boss fell, critically wounded, one of his supporters gunned down Colombo's assailant, a black gunman named Jerome A. Johnson. Johnson died instantly, his killer was never caught and there was nothing to link Johnson to Gallo. But the Colombo mob ident St. like a bowling ball. I want everybody to see it. And that Mooney (Gallo captain John Cutrone)! I want to personally peel him like a banana."

Yack's tirade against Gallo made a lasting impression on Joe Pesh. "The way he grind his teeth," the ex-mobster recalls, "it looked like he would have ate him."

"I was up at Monticello (N.Y.) when Colombo got shot," Luparelli continued. "I heard it on the radio and I went down to Mulberry St. right away. Joe Yack and Junior (Carmine Persico) and a lot of Colombo's men were there. Joe Notch, Colombo's driver and bodyguard, told Joe Yack he'd go to President St. and shoot Gallo. He kept saying, 'Let me go. Let me go.'"

Told Him to 'Forget It'

"Yack told him to forget it. Then he went and told some other guy what he wanted to do and when Yack heard about it he said, 'Let him go if he wants to commit suicide.'"

"Sonny Pinto (Carmine Di Biase) told me to take Joe Yack to my house. I was then living at 2070 20th Lane in Brooklyn. Yack stayed at my apartment while my wife and kids were in Monticello. From there on in, I was always with him. I had to drive him, guard him and stay with him."

"A few days later, Sonny Red (Alphonse Indelicato) got us a three-bedroom apartment on the ground floor of a building in Nyack (at 101 Gedney St. on the Hudson River). It had a doorman and boat dock and the guy who owned it (the apartment) kept a boat there."

commission, the family heads, to talk to all the bosses and get some kind of order that it was all right for him to go after Joe Gallo. We used several different cars and we were never tailed.

"One night Joe went to meet O'Neill (Aniello Dellacroce, underboss to crime czar Carlo Gambino) at the Market Diner downtown on the West Side near the vegetable markets. I had two guns on me. Yack wouldn't hold a gun so that if we ever got arrested he'd be clean. O'Neill had someone with him who was packing a piece.

"Yack and O'Neill sat in a booth and talked while I watched the door to make sure no one came in to disturb them and make sure there were no Gallo guys around.

Meeting With Gambino Set Up

"After the meeting Joe Yack told me he had to meet Carlo Gambino. He said, 'I want you to do everything right because I don't want nothing to go wrong. Of all things, I don't want no tail.'

"Next day we drove to the Howard Johnson's on Queens Blvd. We used my Oldsmobile. Vinnie Aloji (then acting boss of the Colombo family) drove up in a cream-colored Cadillac with his chauffeur. Two of Gambino's men picked them up in another car and drove off with a backup car following.

"When Yack came back a few hours later, he told me: 'I got the okay to smash the Gallo gang.' All the commission approved the contract on Joe Gallo."

Death List Prepared

Luparelli said that Yack had prepared a death list of 17 Gallo hoods and associates. The list, headed by Crazy Joe and his brother, Kid Blast, included Mooney Cutrone, Frank (Punchy) Illiano, Rosario (Roy-Roy) Musico and Jerry Ciprio.

"These were 17 guys he wanted killed. We had their pictures, names, addresses and places where they might be.

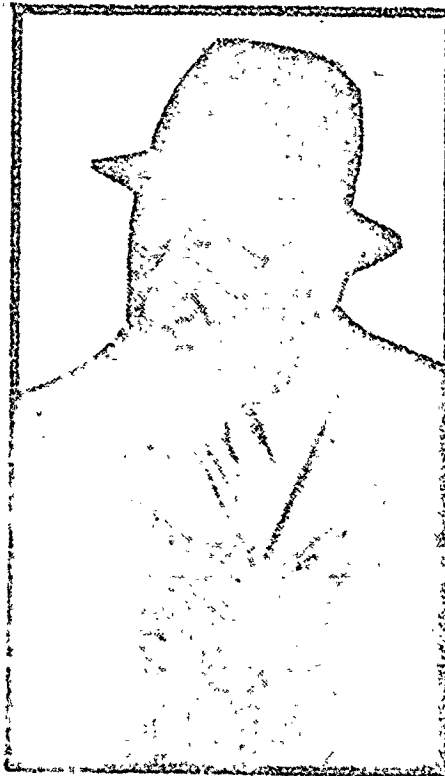

"Bozo (the Colombo family accountant) collected pictures of Gallo guys, taken at night clubs, weddings and things like that. Joe gave me the pictures and told me to keep them in a safe place. I put them in a big frame and put it behind a tapestry in my house.

Ordered to Find Girl

"Joe Yack also got some pictures of the colored girl (who was seen in Columbus Circle with Johnson's car) places and find out who is this girl. He wanted to get a hold of her so we could get the truth."

Luparelli could not find the girl but

Joe Yacovelli, Colombo consigliere, who got commission okay for slaying of Gallo and his associates.

"we got some information from a night club bouncer" who said he had seen the girl and Johnson talking to Joe Gallo's bodyguard, Pete the Greek, a few days before the shooting. So far as Yack was concerned, this clinched the case against Crazy Joe.

"We had got word that Joe Gallo was always with blacks in jail," Luparelli said. "When he got out, there was a lot of blacks going on President St. and asking for Joe Gallo and Kid Blast. From what we heard, Joe Gallo was forming a crew of black guys.

'Hit Was Out for Him'

"The word was out for all the families to stay away from Joe Gallo. He was declared an outlaw and the hit was out for him. Joe Yack told the commission that he would clean up the mess.

Although he must have known about the contract, Gallo continued to visit his old haunts in Manhattan and Brooklyn, including Little Italy's popular Luna Restaurant, 112 Mulberry St.

"So we set up a hit at Luna's. We had two guys stationed outside Luna's, two crash cars, a backup car and a getaway car headed towards Canal St. to go over to Brooklyn. Three men were put in an apartment on Baxter St. (overlooking the restaurant entrance).

'I Brought a Carbine'

"I brought a carbine up there and showed them where to wait until the order came to whack Gallo out. They stood in the apartment two, three days. One of the guys was fooling around with the carbine and a shot went off.

"It went through the wall and the Chinese man who lived next door started hollering. They had to run out of the apartment and that whole plan went down the drain.

"Then we heard Gallo hung out in the Village around Fifth Ave. and 11th St. We tried to set something up there, but he was too cautious.

'Hit Him in Parole Office'

"Now Junior (Persico) came out with an idea: 'Why don't we hit him in the Parole Office?'

"I said, 'How are you going to get away in all the traffic?'

"He said, 'Don't worry. I'll use a motorcycle.'

The Parole Office is in the State Department of Correctional Services at 314 W. 40th St. near Eighth Ave., one of the busiest areas of New York.

"Junior said he'd do it himself with a shotgun," Luparelli continued. "Then he'd jump on the motorcycle and go. They put about 15 Colombo guys up near the Parole Office. Most of these guys were associates, not made guys (official Mafia members). There was nobody that Gallo knew but they all knew him. When Gallo was in jail, he lost contact with people's faces.

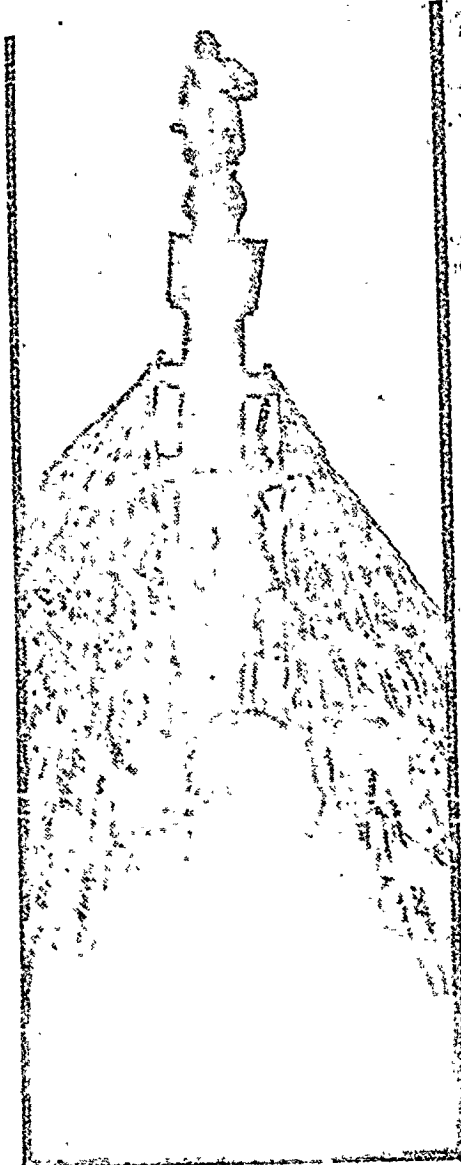

'I'd Make Him Beg for Life'

"They had some cars laid around to foul up the traffic so Junior could get away after the hit. Joe Yack said: 'I hope to God they get this guy. I'd like to have him in my hands. I'd make him beg for his life. I want him to crawl. I'll actually (have a sexual orgasm) watching him die.'"

The mob learned the date Gallo was scheduled to report to his parole officer.

"The call came (for the hit) but Gallo didn't show up. They waited another week but he didn't show up again. Then they called a meeting in a basement over in Brooklyn. A captain (Colombo capo Nick Bianco) came in and said Mooney wants a peace meeting in Junior's Restaurant on Flatbush Ave.

"Joe Yack says, 'Tell him we want a peace meeting. We want him and Joe G. ...'

Joo Colombo stands in front of the explorer at Columbus Circle when assisting in planning of Italian-American Unity Day ceremony.

there, I want you to kill him right outside the place. If anybody gets in front of the gun, shoot through them."

A few days later, Bianco reported to Yack at the Nyack hideout: "Mooney says Joe Gallo won't go to no meeting. He (Gallo) says do whatever you want, he don't give a f—."

A Mobster Talks:

'They're Out to Kill Me...'

(first of a series)

By PAUL MESKIL

© 1974 by New York News Inc.

JOE PESH sat in a motel room a thousand miles from Mulberry St. and talked about his old New York mob and why it is out to kill him.

It was a chilling but oddly monotonous monologue, devoid of any emotion except when he recalled how he was ordered to kill his wife and how he tried to commit suicide to protect his family.

He talked about the murders he had done and seen, and of other awful incidents in his crime-cramped life. The highlight of his career was the execution of Crazy Joe Gallo. Joe Pesh put the finger of death on Crazy Joe and thereby, through an ironic twist of fate, put his own life in jeopardy.

The hunter is now the hunted.

Joe Pesh (a corruption of the Italian word "pesce") means Joe Fish. It was the nickname of Joseph Luparelli, a small fish who swam with the killer sharks of the dark underworld sea. He doesn't use either name any more. He has a new identity, a new life and the first honest job he has ever held.

A journeyman hood, he was born in Manhattan's Little Italy about 40 years ago. Starting out as a truant, street tough and petty thief, he became a burglar, fence and loan shark. Then he found steady employment as chauffeur, bodyguard, courier and enforcer for the sinister Joseph (Joe Yack) Yacovelli, consigliere (counselor) of the Joe Colombo crime family and one of the most powerful Mafia executives.

Joe Breaks His Silence

Luparelli first contacted this reporter about a year ago, while he was in federal custody as a witness in several cases involving organized crime. After several phone conversations, months apart, he finally consented to tell his story to The News.

During two days of secret interviews in a city far from New York, he described his life in mobland, the circumstances leading to the Gallo rubout and his own escape from a similar termination. This is the first time that the full story of the Gallo murder, the assassination attempts that preceded it and its bizarre aftermath has been told for publication by one of the leading participants. Among other things, Luparelli also disclosed details of a ghastly episode that might be called the Case of the Transferred Corpse.

In the spring of 1964, the Colombo clan was busy as the stock market was booming. Joe Yack, the stock a yearling for respect, was preparing for a big American Civil Rights

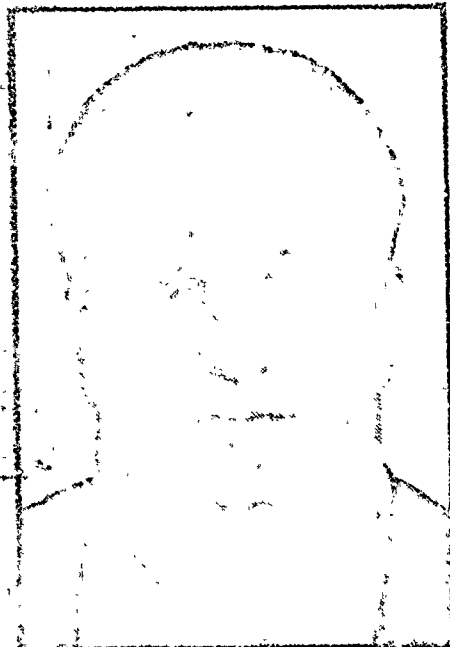

Joe Yack had to take part in the "he didn't want a while I was chauffeur" Colombo agents' eyes on Joe Gallo. from prison in a resumed the lead. South Brooklyn run by his young while he was away.

A Fatal Mistake

Joe Pesh was a bit of a sharking and running errands for his boss, Joe Yack, who was the history of New York's Five Boroughs sent his bodyguard. Other had been to find three friends only as Richie, Joe Stanley and Stanley had made the fatal mistake of not killing Joe Yack's brother.

"These three were Broadway hustlers, not connected to any mob," Luparelli recalls. "They were around sticking up card games and shaking down whores, pimps and hotel thieves. They got ahold of Joe Yack's brother, Frankie, and took him into a Times Square hotel room and demanded money from him. They beat him and tortured him. They shot him up close with a blank pistol that blew holes in his skin and burned him all over with powder burns.

"Joe Yack told me the story. He says, 'I want these three guys.' I went looking for them and finally located Joe Wagon Wheels in the Peppermint Lounge. He used to work in the Wagon Wheel bar as a bouncer, and I knew he was a dealer in stolen travelers' checks.

"He didn't know I was with Joe Yack. I showed him a blank traveler's check and said I had plenty of them. I said, 'Could you move these?' He said, 'Yes. I know a guy who's very interested in that paper.' So we set up an appointment for the next day.

"I picked him up on the corner of Sixth Ave. and 45th St. and drove him downtown to where everybody was waiting. They were in an apartment on Elizabeth St. between Broome and Grand. There was Joe Yack, Sonny Pinto (Carmine Di Biasi), Sonny Red (Anthony Indelicato), Sonny Red's brother J.B., and a couple of other guys.

"I walked Wagon Wheels in, following him. When the door shut, J.B. pulled out a gun. Sonny Red grabbed him (Wagon Wheels) around the neck. I also grabbed him. We threw him face down on the kitchen floor.

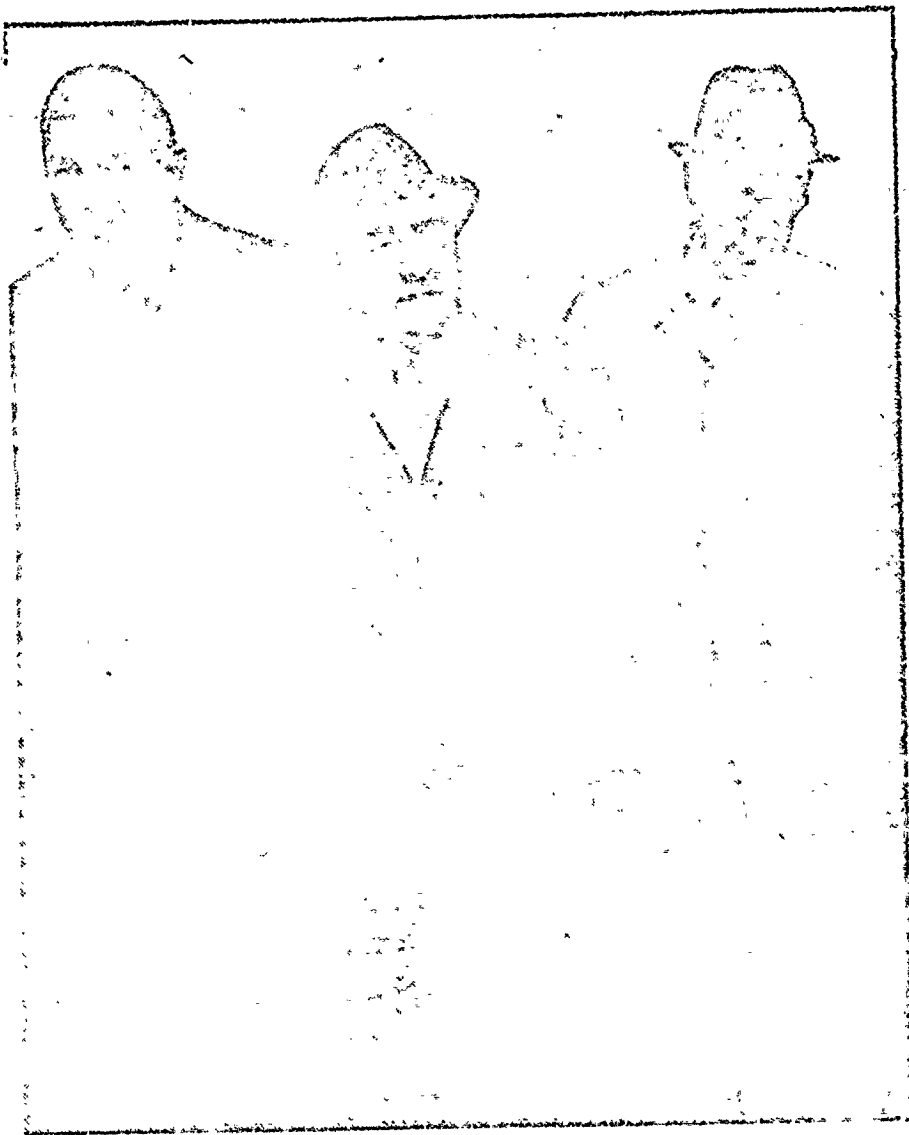

The End of Wagon Wheels

"Joe Yack came in with an ice pick and started jabbing him in the back while we were holding him. The ice pick got stuck in his spine and they had to knock it loose with a gun butt. Then I got a wire and put it around his neck. He was still kicking. His foot banged on the floor and Sonny Pinto thought someone was knocking on the door.

"We held him down about 15 minutes before he stopped. Then we stood there and watched him to make sure he ain't going to jump up. Yack kicked him in the face a few times. The ice pick had punctured the kidneys and liver, but there was hardly any blood. Only a spot about the size of a quarter on his shirt.

"After it was over, we left him on the floor and went out, one and two at a time, a few minutes apart. We went to a bar and had a drink and talked. Then Yack said, 'Go back and

He was so stiff I couldn't bend him. He was a big guy, about 6 foot, 190 pounds. I tied his hands and feet and put him in two big zippered plastic bags—the kind for a human being to be put in. We put him in there, zippered up the bags and washed the floor.

Body Removal Experts

"I told Yack what we done and he says, 'Good. I'll call Junior (Carmine Persico, a notorious Colombo capo) and have him and his men come down there to move him out.'"

Junior arrived an hour later with his brother, Alphonse; his bodyguard, Hugh (Apples) McIntosh, and two other Colombo soldiers. They hauled Joe Wagon Wheels down to a stolen car and tried to stuff him in the trunk, but he wouldn't fit, so they laid him on the back seat and drove him to Brooklyn.

"McIntosh and another guy took the car to Brooklyn. I followed in another car. We left the hot car with Wagon Wheels in it somewhere on Park Ave. under the viaduct (under the Brooklyn-Queens Expressway). We locked the car, threw the keys away and went back to New York."

For several days, Yack's crew listened to the news broadcasts and read the papers. Nobody mentioned the bag-wrapped body. The cops hadn't found it. Yack finally dispatched two soldiers to Brooklyn to retrieve the corpse and bury it. They transferred Wagon Wheels to another stolen car—one with a trunk big enough to hold him—and drove him to a lonely section of Sheepshead Bay. As they were digging a grave, a passerby stopped to watch. So the boys took their shovel and rolled Wagon Wheels back to Little Italy.

"This was about two weeks after we dropped him," Luparelli said.

thought he was gone for good. Then Joe Yack told me to go to the garage and dig a hole for him.

"I said, 'I thought it's all over with this guy. What's he doing, walking around yet?'"

Luparelli said he buried the body in the basement of a garage on Elizabeth St. between Kenmare and Broome Sts. After he surrendered to the FBI a year later, detectives and federal agents dug up the basement floor—but the mob had moved Wagon Wheels again. Investigators later found the corpse—minus the head and hands—in a shallow grave in New Jersey.

"They chopped off his head and hands so nobody could identify him," Luparelli said. "But I remembered the kind of clothes he wore when he was killed, and those clothes were still on him."

(Wagon Wheels was identified as Joseph Viscovi. To date, no one has been charged with his murder.)

After Wagon Wheels was planted in the garage basement, Yack ordered his men to "find the other two guys."

"I hunted them all over town," Luparelli said, "but I never did find them. While all this was going on, the Joe Gallo stuff started. Joe Yack never did like Gallo."

Veterans of Gallo War

"Yack and Junior were soldiers in the old Profaci mob during the first war with the Gallos (in the early 1930s). When Joe Profaci died and Colombo became boss, he made peace, and then he made Joe Yack and Junior captains."

"Them and their men were enforcers for the family. They were the youngest captains to be made and Yack became the youngest consigliere they ever had. One time he told Colombo he wanted to have Joe Gallo killed in jail. He said, 'If this guy comes out, we'll have a lot of trouble.' Colombo said, 'No we won't.'"

"When Colombo got shot, Yack said, 'I told him Gallo would cause trouble. If he'd listened to me, he wouldn't be a vegetable now.'"

If he'd then talked about his own background.

"I was born at 165 Mulberry St."

the last of seven children. When I was a kid, the icemen worked out of a cellar near my house. They sold blocks of ice to people who had iceboxes. I saw two guys shot down in broad daylight near the ice cellar when I was about 7. My mother came and took me away.

"I was a problem child. I wasn't able to sit still in a chair or anything. I was sort of a rough kid, and I didn't like to stay in school. We'd play hooky, go to a movie on the Bowery. Finally they sent me to what they called 'crime school,' PS 37 on 83d St. For truant children, kids in trouble. Once you got in school they'd lock all the doors and only open them up at 3 o'clock. If you were out of order, the teacher would slap you in the face."

An Early and Bad Start

"When I was 11 or 12, I worked as a runner for numbers and bets. I would bring envelopes full of money and bets from one person to another. For this I got 40 cents a day. After work, I used to go to the vegetable market on Mott St., steal some fruit, and then go to the public pool on Pitt St. Everybody from Mulberry St. would be swimming there in the summer."

"I knew Joe Yack and Sonny Pinto in those days. They were older than me. One day when I was about 13, I stabbed a 26-year-old guy who cursed my sister. A traffic cop came running over and took the knife off me and locked me up. I went to Youth House. The guy survived and withdrew charges, but they held me anyway."

"They finally let me out on probation to attend school. I kept breaking all the rules they gave me, and, after a while, I just got too old to be a delinquent."

On the night of Dec. 27, 1934, Luparelli encountered Sonny Pinto and Sonny's best friend, Michael (Mike) Evans) Bruchello, in the Mulberry Social Club. They told Luparelli and another neighborhood youth to go home. When they hesitated, he drew a gun.

"Mike Evans didn't raise a bit, even with the gun out," Luparelli recalls. "No sooner than I went out the door, Sonny started shooting at him. I ran across the street to my house, ran upstairs, looked out the window. I didn't see nothing, so I went to bed. Next morning my mother said, 'They killed Mikey Evans last night.'"

Sonny hid out for seven years, during which he made the FBI's most-wanted list. He finally surrendered and as convicted of murder and sentenced to die in the electric chair, but was acquitted at a second trial. He is now on the lam again.

Shortly after Mikey Evans was killed, Joe Pesh was picked up for burglary and sent to Elmira Reformatory. "I made parole, and, after I was out about eight months, I was arrested for another burglary, and for this I got a year on Rikers Island.

The Forty Thieves

"When I got out I was with a bunch of guys they called the Forty Thieves. We were burglars. No stickups; I never went on a stickup. I was strictly a second-story man. We hit stores, warehouses, factories. We went after safes, jewelry and merchandise.

"My job was mostly as an in man—to get the rest of the crew into the place. I was lighter then. It was easy for me to scale 10-story buildings on the ledges or climb down on a rope from the roof or jump from one roof to another.

"Later on, I did some shylocking in Little Italy. I shylocked Chinese and bartenders, some business guys, guys in the neighborhood. This was my own business, I drew $200 a week from the family fund. If any deals went through, I had a piece of it."

Luparelli said he has known Yack "all my life," but started working for him only about 10 years ago.

"I was told to do it (to be his chauffeur-bodyguard). Sonny Pinto said, 'You've got to do it.' He (Yack) needed a place to go (while he was ducking a subpoena) so I took him to my place in Brooklyn while my family was out of town. He decided to pick me out of all the guys. I was the only guy available at that time.

"Joe Yack was a made man (an initiated member of the Mafia). I wasn't made because the (membership) books were closed then. But I was almost as good as made when traveling with Joe. I had more power than many regular made guys. Because I was with Joe, they had less to say than I had. I was bringing orders and messages that usually a made guy would do. So I was like being made, but not officially."

A Mini-Mob

He added that Joe Yack surrounded himself with his old Mulberry St. pals, "a family within a family," including some who weren't members of the Colombo clan. "Joe Yack didn't trust made guys," his former employe said.

Luparelli admitted that he had been involved in "five or six" murders and that he had shot three men, two of whom survived.

Asked about his choice of weapons, he said: "I like a .32, a three-inch, not a snubnose and not a long barrel. A Smith & Wesson. I had a few of them. But there were times I used a .38. They come off the piers or off hijacked trucks.

"We bought some CIA-issue guns (stolen from a shipment to or from the Central Intelligence Agency). Machine guns, silencers and everything. The latest stuff. They sold for $1,700 for a machine gun or $700 for a regular gun with a silencer. Sonny Red, Joe Yack and I all bought guns. I got an automatic pistol with silencer.

"We went to my mother's house, where I had about nine guns, and I fired one off in the living room into two phone books to see what kind of noise it was. My mother was in the next room, and she never heard a thing. Sonny Red told me the machine gun works just as good. 'It sounds like pins falling on the floor.' These guns were great."

Expect arrests of Gambino mob in Galante killing

By ROBERT CRANE
and PAUL MESKIL

Detectives are expected to round up several members of the Gambino mob today on charges linking them with the slaying last July of crime czar Carmine Galante, the Daily News has learned.

It also learned that investigators from the Manhattan district attorney's office have compiled evidence that Galante's murder allegedly was planned in a Little Italy social club that is the headquarters of the Gambino mob and its boss, Aniello (Mr. O'Neill) DellaCroce.

The evidence was obtained through electronic surveillance of the Ravenite Social Club, 247 Mulberry St., where DellaCroce confers with his underlings and conducts the daily business of his 1,000-member, multimillion-dollar crime family.

Videotapes and recordings of bugged conversations in the club were turned over to a grand jury that investigated the alleged Galante murder conspiracy and other major crimes attributed to the Gambinos.

As a result of this inquiry, several indictments of mobsters, and their arrests, are expected today—and more charges are likely to follow.

Besides gathering evidence about the Galante slaying, investigators from Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau's office also collected detailed information about alleged loan-sharking, armed robberies, burglaries, criminal possession of hijacked loot and other crimes.

Among those questioned by the grand jury, The News learned, have been Galante's two top aides, underboss Nicholas Marangello and family counselor Steve Cannone, as well as Armand (Buddy) DellaCroce, Aniello's 24-year-old son; Leonard De Maria and reputed loan sharks Salvatore Palmiere and Louis Palmiere.

Sources close to the investigation said that Gambino leaders planned Galante's execution and cleared the murder contract with the heads of other mobs and with Galante's closest associates. Conversations reportedly recorded in the Ravenite indicate that the Gambino bosses were outraged because Galante was cutting in on their rackets and reportedly was selling mob memberships for $50,000 each and pocketing the proceeds.

Women's lib?

He even reportedly planned to induct his daughter Nina, who served as his chauffeur, courier and confidante, as a mob member. But other bosses, even those closest to him, were not ready for this underworld version of women's lib.

Several mobsters were questioned by the grand jury about the murder contract, which was carried out last July 12 in a Brooklyn restaurant, but none of them provided details. Armand DellaCroce, for example, was asked if he knew about the plot "before Mr. Galante was murdered." Reading a typed statement prepared by his lawyer, he replied:

"I respectfully decline to answer the questions to be asked of me on the grounds that those questions are based upon information gained as a result of electronic surveillance in violation of my rights under the Fourth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution."

According to court documents, Salvatore Palmiere gave a similar reply when asked: "Did you know Carmine Galante was going to be killed, in advance of his murder?"

Louis Palmiere was asked about an incident in which a Gambino mobster collected a loan payment "by hitting a person in the head with a lead-filled pipe." He read a long, legalistic statement ending with "I decline to give any testimony which may tend to incriminate me." He repeated this statement in response to other questions until the exasperated prosecutor inquired if he intended to answer all questions that way. "No," Palmiere said. "I don't know nothing else. That's what I got to read—what I know."

Indictments Reported Due Today With Link To Slaying of Galante

By ROBERT D. McFADDEN

Eight reputed underworld figures will be indicted today on contempt and possibly other charges for refusing to testify before a Manhattan grand jury about a number of underworld activities, including last summer's unsolved gangland murder of Carmine Galante, the organized crime leader, sources close to the investigation said yesterday.

The suspects, who include two of Mr. Galante's top personal aides and several followers of a rival underworld leader, all were expected to be arrested in New York City this morning. Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau is to unseal the indictments at a 10:15 A.M. news conference at his office at 100 Centre Street.

The precise charges contained in indictments were not disclosed, but the sources said they involved contempt citations and may include perjury.

The charges were based, the sources said, on evidence obtained on videotape and tape recordings made clandestinely in a Little Italy social club that is the headquarters of Aniello DellaCroce, the reputed leader of the organized crime "family" once headed by Carlo Gambino. The sources said that the secret recording devices had been planted at the club, the Ravenite Social Club, 247 Mulberry Street, but had operated for only a brief time before they were discovered and ripped out by intended targets of the surveillance.

Nonetheless, the sources said, the material gathered touched on numerous organized crime activities, including Mr. Galante's murder, loan-sharking operations, armed robberies, burglaries, the handling of hijacked merchandise and other crimes.

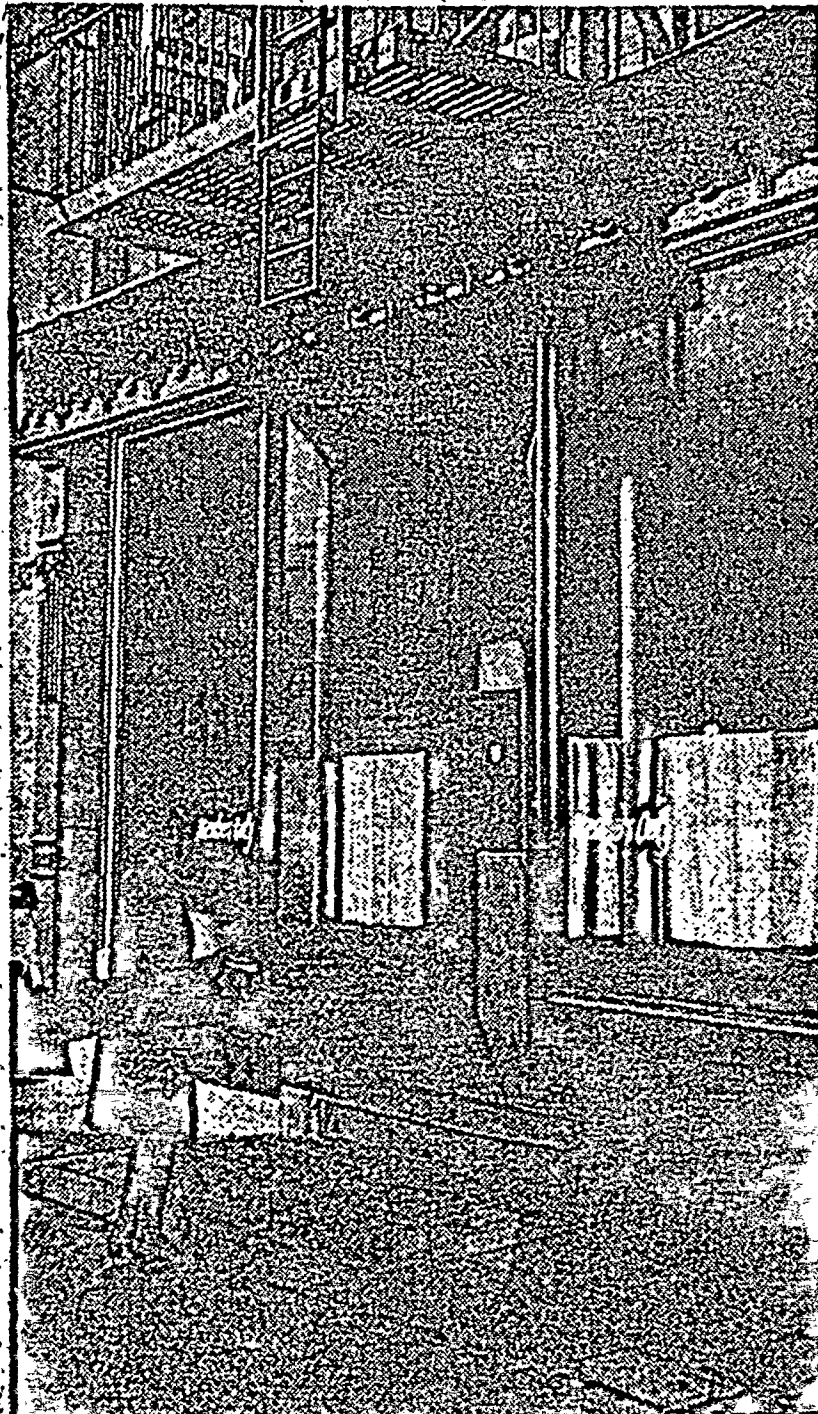

The men to be indicted today were identified by the sources as Nicholas Marangello and Stefano Canone, the alleged top associate and counselor, respectively, of Mr. Galante's organization; Armand DellaCroce, the 24-year-old son of Aniello DellaCroce; Leonard DiMaria, a reputed member of the Gambino group; Salvatore and Louis Palmiere, described as loan-sharks, and Norman Dupont and Ed Lino.

The sources said that all had been summoned before the grand jury and that most had been offered waivers of immunity — meaning that they could not be prosecuted for anything they disclosed in their testimony — and were cited for contempt when they refused to testify anyway about the murder of Mr. Galante and other topics.

Investigators said the evidence indicated that the murder of Galante — who was slain in a barrage of shotgun blasts and gunfire in a Brooklyn restaurant last July 12 — may have been planned in the Ravenite club by leaders of the Gambino group and probably had the approval of the heads of other underworld organizations in the city.

Resentment over Mr. Galante's alleged efforts to cut in on the rackets of rival groups was said to have been the principal motive for his assassination, which occurred at the Joe and Mary Italian-American Restaurant at 205 Knickerbocker Avenue in the Bushwick section. A Galante bodyguard, Leonardo Coppola, 40, and the restaurant owner, Giuseppe Turano, 43, also were killed in the attack by three gunmen wearing ski masks.

Mr. DellaCroce, who is said by law-enforcement officials to head a 1,000-member organization that is the largest underworld group in New York City, confers daily with associates at the club, which is near his home at 232 Mulberry Street.

ALPHONSE INDELICATO, aka "Sonny Red", aka "Allen Indelicato"; has a criminal record dating to 1948, which includes an arrest for a federal narcotics violation in 1950 and second degree murder in 1952. INDELICATO, while free on parole from his murder conviction, was recently charged with perjury following his testimony before a New York State Grand Jury to the effect that he had not been present in 1971 at a Nyack, NY meeting when the assassination of JOE GALLO was planned; however, the perjury indictment was dismissed when a corroborative witness, fearful of retribution, decided not to testify against INDELICATO. A significant heroin trafficker in his own right, he is affiliated with the BONNANO LCN Family, and has been linked to the [redacted] and DI PALERMO narcotic organizations. A frequent companion of CARMINE GALENTE at this writing. he is associated with [redacted]

On April 18, 1980, the following investigation was conducted by Special Agent (SA) [REDACTED] Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), Brooklyn-Queens Metropolitan Resident Agency (BQMRA):

At the New York State Division of Parole, 314 West 40th Street, New York (NY), NY, it was determined that parolee ALPHONSE INDELICATO, also known as (aka) "SONNY RED", is currently assigned to Parole Officer (PO) [REDACTED]

Senior Parole Officer [REDACTED] advised that ALPHONSE INDELICATO is currently applying for a "three-year discharge", an appeal of his parole, which if granted, would terminate his parole for a 1951 homicide conviction. [REDACTED] advised that INDELICATO is attempting to obtain this three year discharge through his attorney, [REDACTED] of the firm [REDACTED]

INDELICATO was released from the Greenhaven Correctional Facility on November 7, 1966. INDELICATO was convicted on May 27, 1954 and sentenced on June 29, 1954 for first degree murder and attempted murder, first degree.

The following is a synopsis of records regarding INDELICATO's educational background:

92-7006-195

BQ 92-7006

INDELICATO attended P.S. 130, Manhattan from February of 1933, until January 31, 1940, when he was graduated from the sixth grade. He was presumably transferred to public school 21 in Manhattan in June of 1940, but that school reports that he was actually in attendance there in 1939. INDELICATO supposedly subsequently attended the Murray Hill Vocational High School until 1942 when he was fifteen years of age but no records were found to substantiate this.

INDELICATO is the oldest of five children born to ANTONIO INDELICATO and ACCURSIA CATANIA. INDELICATO

CARMINE GALANTE-VICTIM RICO-MURDER

On 4/4/80, SAs [REDACTED] along with Inspector [REDACTED] Detective [REDACTED] and Detective [REDACTED] of the NYCPD met with Inspector [REDACTED] NYCPD, Manhattan District Attorney's Office.

Inspector [REDACTED] was in charge of the investigation into the Ravenite Social Club. The Ravenite is on Mulberry St. in Manhattan and is run by GAMBINO underboss, ANIELLO DELLACROCE. Inspector [REDACTED] has video tape of the Ravenite on the day that GALANTE was killed, 7/12/79. Inspector [REDACTED] made available to the FBI a copy of the video for 7/12/79, which shows a meeting about a half hour after the homicide of BONANNO members, STEVE CANNONE, PHIL GIACCONE, and ALPHONSE, [REDACTED]

A review of their logs shows CANNONE there only several times while they were observing the club. 7/26/79 is the first time he is at the club after the GALANTE homicide. Video shows him with NICK MARANGELLO and [REDACTED] Then on 7/30/79 he is at the club again, talking with [REDACTED] GIACCONE, and two unsubs.

The following is a list of people who were at the Ravenite on 7/11/79 and 7/12/79. Inspector [REDACTED] is providing photographs of individuals who frequent the Ravenite:

On 4/30/80, at approximately 10:55 AM, surveillance was instituted in the vicinity of 1 East Third Street, NY, NY. At approximately 11:20 PM, ALPHONSE INDELICATO exited from, East Third Street and walked north on Bowery Street. He then entered a waiting vehicle, a grey Volvo, bearing NY plate number 205-PDE.

Vehicle was parked on the left side of Elizabeth Street between Grand and Broome Streets.

(2)

BQ 92-7006

INDELICATO alighted from the vehicle and walked east across the street on Elizabeth Street. The driver alighted from the driver's side and stood next to the vehicle. INDELICATO was observed motioning to the driver, using arm movements. Writer then drove past both individuals in attempting to park vehicle and continue observations on foot. At approximately 11:32 AM, vehicle bearing NY plate number 205-PDE was no longer observed. Further check of Milano Furniture, 227 Grand Street, NY, NY, failed to reveal presence of INDELICATO or driver.

The following is a description of INDELICATO and driver based on observations conducted on 4/30/80:

On 4/30/80, at approximately 10:55 AM, surveillance was instituted in the vicinity of 1 East Third Street, NY, NY. At approximately 11:20 PM, ALPHONSE INDELICATO exited from, East Third Street and walked north on Bowery Street. He then entered a waiting vehicle, a grey Volvo, bearing NY plate number 205-PDE.

Vehicle was parked on the left side of Elizabeth Street between Grand and Broome Streets.

INDELICATO alighted from the vehicle and walked east across the street on Elizabeth Street. The driver alighted from the driver's side and stood next to the vehicle. INDELICATO was observed motioning to the driver, using arm movements. Writer then drove past both individuals in attempting to park vehicle and continue observations on foot. At approximately 11:32 AM, vehicle bearing NY plate number 205-PDE was no longer observed. Further check of Milano Furniture, 227 Grand Street, NY, NY, failed to reveal presence of INDELICATO or driver.

Subject : ALPHONSE INDELICATO, aka
AR (A)
OO:BQ

Source information regarding the subject to date is relatively limited and reflects no specific criminal activity. Inquiry with the New York City Police Department Intelligence Division also failed to produce information indicative of specific criminal activity. Attempts to obtain intelligence by surveillance and agency inquiry have also proved negative regarding criminal activity within the Brooklyn-Queens area.

Inasmuch as no information has been received or developed to date indicating criminal activity by the subject, who appears to be associated primarily with the New York City area, it is recommended that this case be closed administratively.
